Part B: Comments for the Institution on the Examination Process and StandardsMatters for Urgent Attention

If there are any areas which you think require urgent attention before the programme is offered again please note them in this box

There are no matters for urgent attention.

Only applicable in first year of appointment

Were you provided with copies of previous relevant External Examiners' reports and the response of the School to these?

N/A

For Examiners completing their term of appointment

Please comment on your experience of the programme(s) over the period of your appointment, remarking in particular on changes from year to year and the progressive development and enhancement of the learning and teaching provision, on standards achieved, on marking and assessment and the procedures of the School

N/A.

1. Please indicate the extent to which the programme Aims and Intended Learning Outcomes (ILOs) were commensurate with the level of the award

- The appropriateness of the Intended Learning Outcomes for the programme(s)/modules and of the structure and content of the programme(s);
- The extent to which standards are appropriate for the award or award element under consideration.

The programme Aims and ILOs were commensurate with the level of the award. The module objectives ranged from students demonstrating broad understanding of the developmental disorders, through to critically analysing approaches to assessment, identification and management and, importantly, being able to link theory and practice. The module schedule showed excellent coverage of the main issues relating to this field, with the appropriate breadth and depth required for the level of the award. The standards achieved were appropriate for the award under consideration.

2. Did the Aims and ILOs meet the expectations of the national subject benchmark (where relevant)?

- The comparability of the programme(s) with similar programme(s) at other institutions and against national benchmarks and the Framework for Higher Education Qualifications.

The Aims and ILOs are in line with similar programmes at my own institution and others that I am familiar with.

3. Please comment on the assessment methods and the appropriateness of these to the ILOs

- The design and structure of the assessment methods, and the arrangements for the marking of modules and the classification of awards;
- The quality of teaching, learning and assessment methods that may be indicated by student performance.

From the outline of the module, the indicative reference list and comments from students on the course it is clear that the quality of teaching was very high and very much appreciated by the students. The lecturer is an expert in the field of Developmental Disorder, with broad knowledge of relevant theory and practical application of this to the classroom. Students were very engaged with the topic, found it very interesting and particularly liked the style of the lecturer. They found the use of case studies and practical examples used helped them to understand some of the complex issues and how to apply theoretical concepts to real life classroom practice.

The modules are assessed by 4000-word essays, with an appropriate choice of essay titles. These are well aligned with the ILOs. The choice of titles gives students the opportunity to follow their own interests to some extent and to apply their knowledge of theory to classroom practice.

The marking of work is undertaken by the lecturer for the programme, who is an expert in the field of Developmental Disorder. Second marking of some work is undertaken to check the marks.

All marking seems appropriate and in line with the marking criteria. There were a range of marks obtained by students, with some at the top end indicating very high quality work. The upper end of the marking scale is used appropriately with students awarded for top quality work.

4. Were students given adequate opportunity to demonstrate their achievement of the Aims and ILOs?

- The academic standards demonstrated by the students and, where possible, their performance in relation to students on comparable courses;
- The strengths and weaknesses of the students as a cohort.

A range of marks was obtained by the cohort as a whole. At the lower end students found it hard to express themselves clearly in writing - some having English as a second language. Evaluation and critical analysis was lacking in some of the weaker essays.

At the top end students wrote with a confident and engaging style and with clarity of expression. They demonstrated excellent knowledge of the relevant theories and were able to critically evaluate studies and practical classroom approaches.

This range of submitted work seems similar to at my own institution and others that I have worked in.

5. For Examiners responsible for programmes that include clinical practice components, please comment on the learning and assessment of practice components of the curriculum

6. Please comment on the nature and effectiveness of enhancements to the programme(s) and modules since the previous year

It would be particularly helpful if you could also identify areas of good practice which are worthy of wider dissemination.

To my knowledge there have been no changes since last year, except for appropriate updating of references and other materials.

The areas of good practice include the following:

1. Teaching by an expert in the field. This course has the huge benefit of being led by one of the world's experts in this area. Students commented on the enthusiasm and knowledge of staff - this ensures that teaching is relevant, up to date and inspiring.

2. Application of theory to practice. It is clear from the course outline, references provided and the student work itself that there is a clear focus on applying theoretical models and principles to real life teaching and classroom practice. Students are encouraged to reflect on the integration of theory and practice and some essay titles focus specifically on the application of research findings to school policy and classroom practice.

7. Please comment on the influence of research on the curriculum and learning and teaching

This may include examples of curriculum design informed by current research in the subject; practice informed by research; students undertaking research.

The content of the module is clearly influenced by current research findings in the field of developmental disorder. The lecturer is research active and this comes through in the teaching which is evidence-based and involves critical evaluation of work in the field. The list of references provided to students covers the range of current theoretical perspectives and contemporary issues. The latest diagnostic criteria and guidelines are clearly referred to throughout the course.

The Examination/Assessment Process

9. The University and its Schools provide guidance for External Examiners as to their roles, powers and responsibilities. Please indicate whether this material was sufficient for you to act effectively as an External Examiner.

- Whether External Examiners have sufficient access to the material needed to make the required judgements and whether they are encouraged to request additional information.*

The documentation that I have received has been full and useful.

This year there was an attempt to give external examiners access to module information on line. There has been some difficulty accessing this material but I understand this will be easier next year. It would also be useful to have access to electronic copies of all student work – in case examiners wish to view this in addition to the scripts they are sent. This has been discussed but not yet actioned.

10. Did you receive appropriate documentation relating to the programmes and/or parts of programmes for which you have responsibility, e.g. programme specifications or module handbooks, marking criteria?

- The coherence of the policies and procedures relating to External Examiners and whether they match the explicit roles they are asked to perform.*

The documentation that I received was complete and useful.

This included an outline of the module, breakdown of topics covered each week and a list of references.

11. Were you provided with all draft examination papers/assessments? Was the nature and level of the questions appropriate? If not, were suitable arrangements made to consider your comments?

I received a draft of the essay questions set. Generally I felt that the set questions were appropriately challenging for this level of study, although some gave less opportunity for depth of analysis or critical evaluation of research. This was discussed with the module leader. It would be useful to know how many students attempted each of the titles and the range of marks across each one.

12. Was sufficient assessed / examined work made available to enable you to have confidence in your evaluation of the standard of student work? Were the scripts clearly marked/annotated?

Yes, sufficient assessed work was made available to me to evaluate the standard of student work. I saw work with a range of marks, showing the breadth of work produced. As noted in (9) above, it might be helpful to have available all student work so that examiners can choose to look at additional scripts if required. I have found that to be usual practice in other institutions.

The assessment processes seem thorough. Marking standards are good, consistent and in-line with the marking criteria. There is evidence of some internal moderation. Students are provided with useful feedback – both in terms of notes directly on their script plus a feedback sheet with comments that relate to the assessment criteria. Comments indicated to students what had been done well and what further work would be needed to achieve a higher grade.

13. Was the choice of subjects for dissertations appropriate? Was the method and standard of assessment appropriate?

N/A. I am not examining dissertations.

14. Were the administrative arrangements satisfactory for the whole process, including the operation of the Board of Examiners? Were you able to attend the meeting? Were you satisfied with the recommendations of the Board?

As in previous years, the administrative arrangements were exemplary. Everything was extremely well organised and ran very smoothly. The Exam Board was efficient, with appropriate time set aside for discussion and for examiners to meet with students. I was able to attend the Exam Board in November but not the one in June. I found staff to be friendly and welcoming.

I was entirely satisfied with the recommendations of the Board.

15. Were appropriate procedures in place to give due consideration to mitigating circumstances and medical evidence?

My understanding is that these issues are addressed by the teaching and administrative team prior to the exam board.

Other comments

Please use this box if you wish to make any further comments not covered elsewhere on the form

It was very valuable to meet with students and I wish to thank the team for making this possible. It is clear that students are highly motivated, enjoy the course, find staff friendly and approachable and feel that the University is well resourced in terms of meeting their learning needs. Since it is possible only to meet a few students from the course, it would be useful to have feedback from other students as well – a point that I did raise last year. It is not clear how feedback from students is gathered on this course. It would be useful to have a module report containing a summary of the feedback obtained from the whole cohort.

UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

Dear

Many thanks for the comments you have made concerning the two modules EDUC 5811M Dyslexia and Developmental Coordination Disorder and EDUC 5812M Autistic Spectrum Disorder and Attention Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder making up the programme Children with Developmental Disorders.

I am pleased that you have found the standard of the courses commensurate with the award the students are seeking and that you thought there was excellent coverage of the material. In particular, I am heartened by your comments concerning how the course moved from appropriate theoretical positions to practical applications in the classroom. This is a position we try to take in the School of Education and one we strive to achieve such that the students can make a difference in their practical roles as professionals and that this is based upon good theoretical and empirical evidence. The range of students as you note varies from those that are stuck at the more descriptive level and those who can take the issues from a highly critical and analytical perspective. The assignments hopefully give the opportunity for all students to be stretched and challenged. I am also pleased that the students liked the approach of the lecturer and the sessions were delivered with high skill and knowledge.

You comment that the assignments are 4000 words in length when in fact they are 6000 words. Copies of any work that you would wish to see in addition to the ones chosen will be available for you.

Again many thanks for your comments on these two modules and the programme Developmental Disorders. It is one we value highly and we are pleased and grateful for the comments you have made.

Yours sincerely

Head of School of Education
